Bungle Bungle Scenic Flight HCB

See why this Western Australian tourism icon is World Heritage listed.

- Departing Halls Creek your flight heads northward, crossing the Panton River. On your approach to Alice Downs Homestead, the concentric rings of the McIntosh Hills can be seen to the northwest.
- The flight turns North East and descends to enter the aerial circuit over the Purnululu National Park, commonly known as the Bungle Bungle.
- Your flight crosses the Ord River, which is a mighty torrent in the wet season. The Belburn Airfield, operated by DPAW, can be seen below.
- Upon leaving the circuit, 3 rivers, the Elvire, Panton and Ord all join up and carve a single path across the landscape to empty into Lake Argyle to the north.
- The flight tracks south following the Albert Edward and Elvire Range, turning westward where features such as the China Wall - a lengthy vein of exposed Quartz, which seems to divide the Old Halls Creek township and present day Halls Creek.

Wolfe Creek Bungle Combo HCBC

Combine the spectacle that is Wolfe Creek Crater and the awesome Bungle Bungle.

- Departing Halls Creek your flight heads south crossing the edge of the Albert Edward Range. Much of the rugged terrain below is part of extensive and active pastoral properties.
- Passing over Ruby Plains Station the flight enters the expanse of the Great Sandy Desert, where two rivers cut their way across the desert like lifelines and in the distance the lonely shape of Wolfe Creek Crater seems to erupt from the desert floor.
- Following numerous orbits of the crater, allowing for extensive photo opportunities a course is set northward, passing overhead significant features such as, Sawtooth Gorge, Palm Springs Oasis, Ruby Queen and Mt Bradley Golf Mines, the Panton River and Alice Downs Homestead.
- The flight turns North East and descends to join the aerial circuit over the Purnululu National Park, commonly known as the Bungle Bungle. The contrast of the sheer sandstone walls to the west and the beehive shaped towers to the east offer fantastic photo opportunities.
- Upon leaving the circuit, 3 rivers, the Elvire, Panton and Ord all join up and carve a single path across the landscape to empty into Lake Argyle to the north.
- China Wall - a lengthy vein of exposed Quartz, which seems to divide the Old Halls Creek township and present day Halls Creek.

Lake Argyle Bungle Combo HCLA

- Take off to the north towards the Macintosh Hills estimated to be 1840 million years old, representing some of the oldest rocks in the Kimberley.
- Turning North East your flight descends into the aerial circuit over the Purnululu National Park. The Beehive features are sandstone and the coloured rings, bands of algal coated iron & manganese.
- The flight banks North traversing a number of pastoral properties before the Argyle Diamond Mine comes into view. Some 20 million carats per year has been recovered since mine commissioning in Dec 1985.
- One of the greatest jewels in the Kimberley crown is Lake Argyle covering roughly 900 square kilometres and up to 2000 sq km when in flood.
- You will see to the North the Diversion Dam wall- 335m in length and 100m above the river level below. The dam was constructed in 1971 and filled to capacity by 1974.
- Enjoy the vast scenery as the flight tracks back to Halls Creek along Lake Argyle's eastern shore.
